

tf.compat.v1.local_variables_initializer

Stay organized with collections Save and categorize content based on your preferences.

https://www.tensorflow.org/api_docs/python/tf/compat/v1/local_variables_initializer

Returns an Op that initializes all local variables.

Function Signatures

```
tf.compat.v1.local_variables_initializer()
variables_initializer(local_variables())
```

Code Examples

```
tf.compat.v1.local_variables_initializer()
```

```
tf.compat.v1.local_variables_initializer()
```

Documentation

Returns an Op that initializes all local variables.

View aliases

Compat aliases for migration

See

Migration guide for more details.

`tf.compat.v1.initializers.local_variables`

Migrate to TF2

In TF2, variables are initialized immediately when they are created. There is no longer a need to run variable initializers before using them.

Description

This is just a shortcut for `variables_initializer(local_variables())`

Returns